When one pays money as the price of a commodity or services and uses it, he or she becomes a consumer. In this sense we all are consumers.

Consumer buys goods and services because they have some utility and satisfy human wants directly.

Markets do not work in a fair manner. Often producers are few and powerful whereas consumers purchase in small amounts and are scattered. Hence there is a need for rules and regulations to ensure protection for consumers.

Consumer movement is basically a social force which originated with the necessity of protecting and promoting the interest of consumers against unethical and unfair trade practices.

Consumer movement can be more effective only with the consumers’ active involvement. It requires voluntary effort and struggle, involving the participation of one and all.

UN guidelines are a tool for nations to adopt measures to protect consumers. In 1985 United Nations adopted some guidelines for consumer protection.

Consumer Protection Act was introduced by the Indian Government in 1986. Popularly known as COPRA, it has led to the setting up of a separate department of consumer affairs in Central and State governments.

The Consumer Protection Act, 1986, ensures the following rights which every consumer in India should possess:

- Right to choice
- Right to information
- Right to redressal
- Right to representation
- Right to safety
- Right to consumer education.

ISI and Agmark logos represent quality standard for many products. However, for some products that affect the health and safety of consumers such as LPG cylinders, food colours and additives, cement or packed drinking water, it is mandatory on the part of the producers to get certified by these organisations.
I. SUMMATIVE ASSESSMENT

A. NCERT TEXTBOOK QUESTIONS

Questions Within The Lesson

Q.1. Find out any case of negligence on the part of people around you, where you think that the responsibility lay with the producers. Discuss.

Ans. In a recent case of child birth involving surgery, anesthesia was given to an expecting mother. But the late arrival of the operating doctor created a situation where only the child could be saved and mother could not survive because of extra time for which anesthesia was given to her.

Q.2. For the following products/services discuss what safety rules should be observed by the producers.
   (a) LPG cylinders  (b) cinema theatres  (c) circus  (d) medicines  (e) edible oil  (f) marriage pandal  (g) highrise building

Ans. (a) LPG Cylinders :
   (i) The LPG has to have a distinct odour, easily detectable, in case of a leakage.
   (ii) The cylinder should be strong and explosion proof to avoid accidents due to explosion.

(b) Cinema Theatres :
   (i) The exits should be well lit and wide enough to prevent any stampede.
   (iii) There should be provision of fire extinguishers at several locations to prevent any mishap.

(d) Right to consumer education
(e) Right to choice
(f) Right to representation

Questions in the Exercise

Q.1. Why are the rules and regulations required in the marketplace? Illustrate with an example.
Ans. To protect the consumer from unfair trade practices, rules and regulations are required. This can be explained with the help of an example. A shopkeeper weighs less than the actual quantity or sells adulterated or defective goods. There should be some check on such activities.

Q.2. What factors gave birth to the consumer movement in India?
Ans. Unethical and unfair trade practices such as hoarding, black marketing etc, gave birth to the consumer movement in an organised manner in 1960.
Q.3. Explain the need for consumer consciousness by giving examples.

Ans. Consumer consciousness is being aware of your right as a consumer while buying any goods or services. Example: (i) It is common to see consumers bargaining with sellers for additional discounts below the MRP. (ii) Because of conscious consumers, most of the sweet shops do not include the weight of the container when they weigh sweets.

Q.4. Mention a few factors which cause exploitation of consumers.

Ans. Factors which cause exploitation of consumers are:
   (i) Lack of awareness of consumer rights among buyers.
   (ii) Improper and inadequate monitoring of rules and regulations.
   (iii) Individual purchase quantity is quite small.
   (iv) Consumers are scattered over large areas.

Q.5. What was the rationale behind the enactment of Consumer Protection Act 1986?

Ans. The rationale behind the enactment of COPRA 1986 was to set up a separate department of consumer affairs in Central and State governments and it has enabled us as consumers to have the right to represent in a consumer court.

Q.6. Describe some of your duties as consumers when you buy any commodity from a shopping mall in your locality.

Ans. When a consumer buys any commodity, he/she should be aware of his or her rights and verify the following details given on the packing:
   (i) The MRP of the product
   (ii) Date of expiry of the product
   (iii) Instructions for use
   (iv) Address of the manufacturer.

For example, when a consumer buys medicines, he must read directions for proper use. The consumer should negotiate for a price which is either below MRP or equal to the MRP. Date of expiry should be much after the date of purchase.

If the product does not match the written specification, the consumer can lodge a complaint with authorities and ask for compensation.

Q.7. Suppose you buy a bottle of honey and a biscuit packet. Which logo or mark you will have to look for and why?

Ans. We should look for Agmark symbol before buying the food items because this mark is certified by the government and assures the quality of the product.

Q.8. What legal measures were taken by the government to empower the consumers in India?

Ans. Consumers have the right to seek redressal against unfair trade practices and exploitation. If any damage is done to a consumer, he has the right to get compensation depending upon the degree of damage. This is covered under COPRA. The government has also introduced RTI – Right to Information Act – to empower the consumer.

Q.9. Mention some of the rights of consumers and write a few sentences on each.

Ans. Some of the rights of consumers are as follows:
   (i) Right to choice — Any consumer who receives a service in whatever capacity, regardless of age, gender and nature of service, has the right to choose whether to continue to receive that service. Under this right, a consumer may also choose any one of the various brands of a product (say, a refrigerator) available in the market.

(ii) Right to redressal — Consumers have the right to seek redressal against unfair trade practices and exploitation.

(iii) Right to represent — The act has enabled us as consumers to have the right to represent in the consumer courts.

Q.10. By what means can the consumers express their solidarity?
Ans. By way of Consumer Forums or Consumer Protection Councils, consumers can express their solidarity.

Q.11. Critically examine the progress of consumer movement in India.
Ans. Earlier there was no legal system available to consumers to protect them from exploitation in the marketplace. It was presumed that it was the responsibility of consumers to be careful while buying a commodity or service.

It took many years for organisations in India and around the world to create awareness among people.

In India, the consumer movement as a “social force” originated due to the necessity of protecting and promoting the interest of consumers against unethical and unfair trade practices. Hoarding, black marketing etc. gave birth to consumer movement in an organised form in the 1960s. As a result of which, the government passed the Consumer Protection Act in 1986. Example – Any businessman resorting to unfair means shall be taken to task by the different courts set up at the district, state and national levels. As a result, the consumers could be compensated for the loss they incurred by buying defective goods or getting poor services.

Q.12. Match the following :

(i) Availing details of ingredients of product (a) Right to safety

Q.13. Explain the consumer’s ‘Right to Choose’ with suitable example. [2011 (T-2)]

Ans. Right to choose: The consumer has a right to choose from amongst a variety of goods and services available in the market at competitive prices.

For example: A gas supply dealer cannot force or insist any consumer to buy a gas stove if they do not require it at the time of taking a new connection.

Ans. Consumer exploitation has given rise to consumer organisations which started writing articles, publicity through media and holding exhibitions at various areas to make the consumer aware. Consumer groups were formed to look into the malpractices at the ration shops and overcrowding in the road passenger transport. Government started taking initiatives to correct faulty business practices which are against the consumers. A major step taken by the government in 1986 was the enactment of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986.

Q.15. What are Consumer Forums? What is their importance? [2011 (T-2)]

Ans. Consumer Forums are the organisations formed to guide consumer rights. They are also called as Consumer Protection Councils.

Importance of these organisations are as follows:
(i) They guide a consumer in filing the cases at the consumer courts.
(ii) They can also represent individual consumer at the consumer courts, if required.
(iii) They create awareness among people regarding consumer rights. For this, they also receive financial support from the government.

Q.16. Explain any three strategies adopted by the government to protect the interest of the consumers. [2011 (T-2)]

Ans. The strategies or measures adopted by the government to protect the interest of the consumers are as follows:
(i) Legislative measures: Formation of national, state and district level courts to look into the grievances and complains of the consumers.

(ii) Administrative measures: Formation of Public Distribution Systems (PDS). They ensure food security to the poor and prevent hoarding, black marketing and overcharging by traders.

(iii) Technical measures: Various quality standards have been settled to ensure the quality of products. BIS (Bureau of Indian Standards) is for industrial and consumer goods, Agmark for agricultural products and ISO (International Standard Organisation) checks the goods at international level.

Q.17. “There is a need for rules and regulations to ensure protection of consumers.” Give two arguments in support of the statement. [2008]

Ans. (i) There is a need for rules and regulations to protect the consumers from unfair trade practices. For example—
A shopkeeper weighs less than the actual quantity and charges more.

(ii) In order to make high profit, some manufacturers of oil, ghee, butter, khoya etc. stoop to adulteration. Such things prove very injurious to the health of the customers. Hence, rules and regulations protect the consumers from such unethical trade practices.

Q.18. Analyse the functions of Consumer Protection Councils. [2008]

Ans. Consumer Protection Councils help the consumers against any harassments or cheating from any business or economic agency. If any businessman resorting to unfair means he shall be taken to task by councils set up at the district, state and national level. Consumers’ complaints are heard by them and with their cooperation, the councils try to get the culprits duly punished and the grievances of the consumers redressed. The councils educate the consumers to be aware of their rights and how to protect them. (The rights, for example, of information, right to choose, right to be heard, right to be protected against goods hazardous to life and property etc.) The councils see to it that the customers are compensated for the loss they incurred in buying defective goods or getting poor services. For example, a bank was fined for sloppy services, a hospital had to pay compensation to a patient for medical negligence etc.

Q.19. Why is it very difficult to make changes to the power sharing arrangement between the Union government and State governments? Explain with example. [2008]

Ans. In this arrangement, Constitution clearly lays down the division of powers between Union and States. So for any changes, it has to go through the amendment procedures which is difficult. Here, the Centre has a general authority, but the regional or state governments are given autonomy. So interference in each other’s jurisdiction for any change is difficult.

For example, in India where there is federal division of powers, if it is required to bring any changes in the state boundary, the concerned state has to be consulted and 2/3 special majority amendment procedure is to be followed.

D. LONG ANSWER TYPE QUESTIONS (4 MARKS)

Q.1. Explain the factors which gave birth to the consumer movement in India.

Ans. (i) Unfair trade practices: Some traders and shopkeepers indulge in unethical or unfair trade practices. They cheat the customers by giving them articles of substandard quality.
Duplicate items are also available in the market but they look so genuine that even wise and clever customers fail to differentiate them.

Similarly, underweighing tactics are very common among shopkeepers. They give less quantity but charge more than the actual.

(ii) Adulteration and impurity: It is also a common practice where manufacturers of ghee, oil, butter etc. resort to adulteration. These activities increase their profit margin causing loss to the customers. Sometimes it proves very injurious to the health of the customers.

(iii) Artificial scarcity: Shortage of essential items in the market is the result of hoarding. In order to get more profit certain unscrupulous traders resort to hoarding of these goods thereby creating artificial scarcity. After sometime they sell these products at higher prices.

(iv) False or incomplete information: At times false information is passed on through the media and through other methods to attract consumers. This activity causes monetary loss as well as inconvenience to the consumers.

PREVIOUS YEARS’ QUESTIONS

Q.2. Who is a consumer? Explain five duties of a consumer. [2004]

Ans. Any person who buys anything in the market and uses it, is called consumer.

Duties of consumer: (i) It is the responsibility of the consumer to be more alert and questioning about the price and quality of goods and services that he/she uses. (ii) To assert and act to ensure that he/she gets a fair deal. (iii) To organise together as consumers to develop the strength and influence to promote and protect their interests. (iv) To purchase quality marked products such as ISI, AGMARK etc. (v) To ask for cash memo for the items purchased whenever possible.

II. FORMATIVE ASSESSMENT

A. PROJECT WORK

1. Establish a consumer club in your school. Organise consumer related activities like monitoring bookshops, canteen and other vendor activities.

   Topic covered: Consumer awareness

   Objective: To make the students understand their rights as consumer.

   Skills developed: Better understanding of concepts like consumer awareness, protection of consumer's interests against exploitation, commercial aspects of sale and purchase of goods etc.

   Method: Consumer club should comprise 4 members.

   - First member would be head of consumer club; his responsibility would be overall supervision of canteen, bookshop and vendors in school premises.
   - Rest three members would be for canteen, bookshop and vendor activities inside school premises.
   - Member who is supervising canteen, his responsibility would be to ensure proper quality of edible items and fair price of items. This rate list should be displayed inside canteen.
   - Member who is supervising bookshop, should check rates charged for various stationery items and their quality.
Member who is supervising various vendor activities inside school premises should check the rate list and quality of items and whether vendor is giving various discounts or concession on certain items as offered by the manufacturer or not.

All three members would give their report to head of club on daily basis and if any irregularity is observed, it would be sorted out with proper coordination with school management and concerned person.

Additional Project: Collect facts in an area/place/vicinity: how consumers having no realisation of their consumer rights got cheated by bad business practitioners? In other words, how retailers, wholesalers, service providers do cheating.
